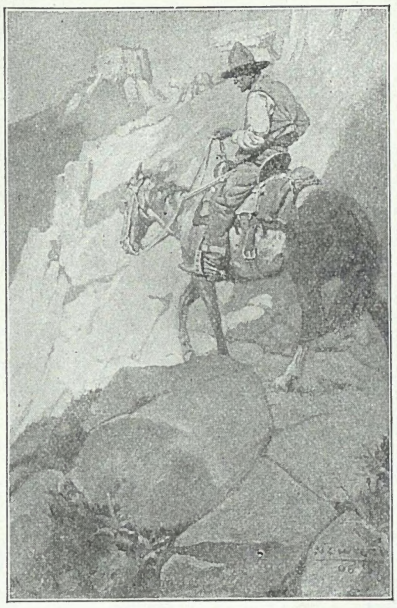
DODD, MEAD & COMPANY, NEW YORK

To be Published Early in September

WHISPERING SMITH

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Illustrated in Colors by N. C. WYETH. $1.50



A tremendous story of the West as it was when the railroad first went through, when men fought rivers, mountains and each other with a sure eye, a quick gun and endless nerve. This is the West where "Whispering Smith" lived and fought and loved, where George McCloud ran his railroad, where Sinclair opposed them both and Dicksie helped them. There has not been a story like this since Bret Harte's early days. And the illustrations drawn in color by N. C. Wyeth are as good as the story.

SIR JOHN CONSTANTINE

By A. T. QUILLER-COUCH. 12mo, $1.50

The adventurous and exciting story of an expedition from Cornwall to recover the crown of Corsica for the rightful heir, with plotting and fighting, humor and romance, and a hero and heroine as attractive as they are unusual.

The DISTRACTIONS of MARTHA

By MARION HARLAND. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25

An amusing and enlightening story of the trials and triumphs, adventures and misadventures of a young housewife in the suburbs, especially in her relation to the servant question.

The Greatest Novel of the Year

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY will handle in this country Sisley's Children's Classics.

EDWARD J. CLODE, New York City, will have ready September 15 "The Late Tenant," Gordon Holmes's new story of love and mystery, which will be well advertised by the publishers throughout the country.

THE AUTHORS AND NEWSPAPERS ASSOCIATION will put on sale August 27 "Doc Gordon," by Mrs. Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, a novel of Southern New Jersey, of which the hero is a famous horse-trader who is full of wit and inexhaustible good humor. Only one store in each city can have this book, and only by ordering a special edition promptly can it get this chance to secure the book of this famous writer.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have been fortunate in getting possession of some deservedly popular fiction. "The Wire Tappers," by Arthur Stringer, needs its third printing, as does also "The District Attorney," by William Sage. The sixth printing is necessary of "The Sage Brush Parson," by A. B. Ward; and the fourteenth printing of "The Wood-Carver of 'Lympus," by M. E. Waller, which has only just passed its second year of success.

LAIRD & LEE will issue at once a new book of the ever-popular Opie Read, under the title "By the Eternal," of which the hero is Andrew Jackson, "Old Hickory." The story gives an insight into the family life of the hero of New Orleans, and shows him surrounded by characters of great interest and much humor. Lovers of fiction, lovers of history and lovers of the American Union will all be pleased by this story of the foggy days of our national life.

HERBERT B. TURNER & Co. announce "The Book of Elizabethan Verse," chosen and edited, with notes, by William Stanley Braithwaite, with an introduction by Thomas Wentworth Higginson. The volume contains the work of 117 authors, comprising over 750 selections, and Mr. Braithwaite has done for the greatest period of English poetry what Mr. Stedman accomplished in his "Victorian Anthology" for the age of Tennyson. The volume is made uniform with "The Oxford Book of Verse," with an addition of a photogravure vignette on the title-page of Whitehall Palace, 1590.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready Marie Corelli's new novel, "The Treasure of Heaven," which has for hero a man of seventy, who has enormous wealth and who, in acquiring it, has never known a day's real happiness. The story shows, we are told, that its author "is convinced that great wealth is the cause of great misery; that there is but little honor, honesty, peace, charity or love in the society where wealth is the touchstone of success; that only among the poor and humble classes, among peasants, outcasts and wanderers does love which is 'the treasure of heaven' find its golden shrine."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will have ready early in September "Whispering Smith: a story of Rocky Mountain Life," by Frank H. Spearman, illustrated in colors by N. C. Wyeth. It is a novel of the West when the railroad first went through, when men fought rivers, mountains and each other with a sure eye and a quick gun, and it has the life and action of an early Bret Harte story. A. T. Quiller-Couch's story, "Sir John Constantine," relating adventures in the Island of Corsica in 1756, is also under way; and Hopkinson Smith's "Tides of Barnegat" is making its way towards a place among the great successes of the year.

The Arbiter was Mr. Ashworthy, who came of a manufacturing family in the north of England and was a careful steward of the great wealth he inherited. In 1859 he was returned to Parliament and remained till 1885. He voted steadily for "peace, retrenchment and reform," then devoted the rest of his life to study and philanthropy. This Conference was specially summoned to discuss the subject of war. It lasted seven days. The names of the speakers are fictitious, but the summing up is a great argument against war and a great plan for universal peace.

The Earl of Watermead, with an income of thirty thousand pounds a year, is a bankrupt through his own foolish extravagance, six years after his coming of age. His only accomplishment is driving a motor better than any one in London. Finding himself friendless and penniless he wanders into the country and obtains a situation as chauffeur to a doctor and falls in love with a poor but charming girl, ignorant of his true name and position. The little sketch winds up in unexpected, dramatic style.

Douglas, C: Noel. Uncle Charlie's poems, mirthful and otherwise. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Co., [1906.] c. 2-168 p. por. D. cl., 50 c.

The author has been a helpless invalid for nearly ten years. His verses, however, are full of cheer and have brought sunshine and amusement into the lives of many other "shut-ins." As "Uncle Charlie" in Comfort and "Uncle George" in Homefolks he is known in many homes. Such newspapers as the New York Herald, The Christian Herald, St. Nicholas, Judge, The Ladies' World and The Woman's Home Companion have published his verses.

Downs, Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Forbush, [Mrs. G: Sheldon Downs, "Georgie Sheldon," pseud.] Step by step: a story of high ideals. N. Y., George W. Dillingham Co., [1906.] c. 6-336 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The story of Louis Arnold, who, bereft of parents and home, is in his twelfth year consigned to the New Hampshire Poor Farm. He runs away four weeks later from this distasteful life, tramping his way to Massachusetts, and enlists the sympathies of a thrifty farmer, who practically adopts him, keeping him until he is twenty-one and giving him a good education. The boy's romance is followed to its happy ending and the past history of his parents revealed. It is shown that he has been wrongfully deprived of a fair inheritance by an unscrupulous man, who after many years makes restitution. The story inculcates high ideals, and is wholesome and elevating. By the author of "Katherine's sheaves."

Fairbanks, G: R. History of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tennessee, from its founding by southern bishops, clergy and laity of the Episcopal church in 1857 to the year 1905. Jacksonville, Fla., H. & W. B. Drew Co., 1905. 15+403 p. il. pors. O. cl., $2.50.

On July 4, 1857, a meeting of Protestant Episcopal bishops, clerical and lay delegates met on Lookout Mountain, near Chattanooga, Tenn., and adopted plans for building up in the South a university of learning, meeting the requirements of higher education but associating such learning with religion, which was not permitted in state institutions. After many troubles the cornerstone was laid in 1860. Then came the Civil War. In 1866, the writer, the only surviving member of the first committee, assisted Bishop Quintard to resuscitate the project. The history of the fine university for which so many sacrifices have been made is told by one who loves it.

Kerbey, Joseph Orton. The land of to-morrow: a newspaper exploration up the Amazon and over the Andes to the California of South America. N. Y., W. F. Brainard, 1906. c. 9+405 p. il. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The writer, a well-known newspaper man who held the position of American Consul at Para, Brazil, made the various journeys described into the area of the upper Amazon at the suggestion of James G. Blaine, when Secretary of State to President Harrison. The chief object of the exploration was to find new rubber territory; a secondary motive was to make known to the world the wonderful natural resources of "Amazonia," a region of equatorial South America, wholly undeveloped, and called by the natives La tiérra de manana, ("The land of to-morrow"). The narrative is a succession of pen pictures of a country and people of which the world is almost entirely ignorant. The unexplored forests of india rubber and other indigenous products of Amazonia, as well as its rich gold and silver deposits, have earned for it the name of "the California of South America."

Kind, J: L: Edward Young in Germany: historical surveys, influence upon German literature, bibliography. N. Y., Macmillan, 1906. c. 14+186 p. O. (Columbia University Germanic studies.) pap., $1 net.

Writer was Carl Schurz Fellow in German, Columbia University. Submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the Faculty of Philosophy, Columbia University. The history of German interest in Young's "Night thoughts" and "Conjectures on original composition" and the considerable literature that arose on the subjects covered are told in detail and add to the knowledge of the literature of Germany in an important period of its history. Chapter 5 contains a bibliography of German translations, reviews and notices of the works of Young, covering from 1728 to 1903 (45 p.).

Klein, C: The lion and the mouse: a story of American life; novelized from the play by Arthur Hornblow; il. by Stuart Travis. N. Y., George W. Dillingham Co., [1906. Ag.] c. 5-399 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

As a play "The lion and the mouse" has had a long run in several theatres. The plot of the play is retained in the novel, but expanded, many interesting details being added not possible in a drama. The plot is built up around a man named John Burkett Ryder, "the Colossus" the world calls him, who has made in oil a fortune beyond computation. To carry through one of his moneymaking schemes he aims to crush a Judge of the Supreme Court he cannot bribe by accusing him of "graft" on false testimony. The Judge's daughter has written a book, "The American Octopus," which the public thinks pictures Ryder. It has been published anonymously, but it is the means of bringing the young author into the Ryder palace, where she beards the lion in his den and succeeds in saving her father's life and honor. An argument against trusts and the present day methods of accumulating colossal fortunes.

A London newspaper to increase its circulation offers a prize of a thousand pounds to the finder of a tin disk buried in an out-of-the-way place. An eccentric middle-aged American woman, travelling in England with her pretty niece, becomes one of the seekers after the buried treasure. The niece is forced to accompany her aunt on her nightly strolls and is arrested by a young Englishman for trespassing on his property. The result is a love story, which is not without amusing scenes.

OBITUARY NOTES.

HOWARD WILFRID BELL, publisher of the "Unit" Books, was drowned on Saturday, August 18, at Loch Arbor, N. J. Mr. Bell was a graduate of the University of California, and had also taken courses at Harvard and Oxford universities.

WILLIAM J. BELL, connected with the Office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY as boy and man for twenty-seven years, died at his home on Monday, August 20, after a long illness brought on by a severe fall three years ago this month. Mr. Bell was born in New York City, in 1864, and after leaving school came to this office when only thirteen years of age. After his accident, which completely paralyzed him, he partially recovered after a year at home and in hospitals, and resumed some work at this office, but his injuries did not admit of the necessary work of a business manager, which position he was holding at the time of the accident. His connection with the office was not severed until 1904. He leaves a wife and two little girls.

REBECCA S. CLARKE, better known as "Sophie May," writer of many books for children, died at her home in Norridgewock, Me., August 16, at the age of seventy-three years. She had been in feeble health for several months. Her "Little Prudy," "Dotty Dimple," "Flyaway," and "Flaxie Frizzle" books were so true to the ways and thoughts of children, for whom they were written, that Miss Clarke was styled "the Dickens of the nursery." She also wrote a number of books for young women. Besides these works Miss Clarke had written the Quinnebasset Series, for young women, viz.: "The Doctor's Daughter," "Our Helen," "The Asbury Twins,' "Quinnebasset Girls," "Janet," and "In Old Quinnebasset." These were brought out from 1871 to 1881. She had also written a novel entitled "Drones' Honey," which was published in 1887.

THE REV. DR. RICHARD EDDY, a prominent Universalist clergyman in New England, an author and a historian, died suddenly on August 16, at Gloucester, Mass. Dr. Eddy was born in Providence, R. I., June 21, 1828. He began his career as a preacher while still a student in New York City in 1848, and during the anti-Masonic crusade lectured in defense of the Masonic Order. In recognition of this service he was made a thirty-three degree Mason. He held pastorates in Rome, Buffalo and Canton, N. Y., in Philadelphia, and at Gloucester, Mass. He was the author of a "History of the Sixtieth New York State Volunteers," of which he was chaplain from 1861 to 1863; "History of Universalism in America, 1636-1886;" "Alcohol in History," "Alcohol in Society," "Universalism in Gloucester," "History of Universalism, A.D. 120-1890," "The Martyr to Liberty," three sermons on Abraham Lincoln, etc. Early in the seventies he became interested in prohibition, to the propagation of which he devoted much of his time in recent years. He was editor of the Universalist Quarterly Review from 1884 to 1891, and had edited the Universalist Register since 1887.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 25, 1906.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE SECOND-HAND BOOKSELLERS' STOCK-LIST.*

THE stock of second-hand books having been sifted, the most important task of the bookseller must next be considered, namely, the cataloguing and pricing of the books. As upon this work depends the ready reference to the books in stock and on the shelves, and, indeed, the very life of the business itself, it need hardly be pointed out that the task of preparing the stock-list is an exceedingly delicate one, not to be undertaken hurriedly or performed carelessly, and should therefore be attended to either by the owner himself or by an experienced assistant under his employer's direction or in consultation with him.

The titles of the books should be written on separate cards, allotting one card for each book so far as it is possible to do so. A card 3 x 5 inches in size, of good, flexible stock, has been found the most convenient and serviceable by cataloguers. If one card should prove insufficient it is better to use two or more rather than to write the continuation of the title on the reverse of the first card. The cards as completed, each alphabet being separated with a colored card having the alphabet printed at the left-hand corner on a raised shank, should be kept in a metal tray open at the top, or, better still, in a cabinet such as are now furnished by the Library Bureau and other manufacturers of library and office fixtures.

There is a wide difference of opinion among booksellers as to the form of the title. Some booksellers transcribe the title verbatim et literatim, while others aim at the utmost brevity. Both these systems have their faults. Verbose titles are apt to be tiresome, and, if persisted in, smack of pedantry, while titles that are baldly and indiscriminately abbreviated may become difficult to understand. The correct method, therefore, lies between these two methods. If the title be altogether too diffuse the bookseller may conscientiously omit the unessential and purely ornamental verbiage. In cataloguing important early-printed books, on the title-pages of which our forebears may have unburdened the entire secret of the "inwardness" of their beloved literary offspring, it may occasionally, as a matter of curiosity, be desirable to retain its original and often absurd wording even to "lining" the title, that is, separating each line of the title-page with a perpendicular dash |. Evident errors even in the wording and spelling of such a title should be preserved, the bookseller unburdening the responsibility for such errors with a (sic) upon the author or compositor who may have "rested in the Lord" for centuries past.

Each stock-list card should give the following information of the book which it represents:

Catalogue Number. This, of course, is changeable and in many cases may not yet exist at all.

Subject.

Author, editor, or, if neither is given on the title-page, the first word, (not an article,) of the title, or a subject catch-word. Writers using a pseudonym should be catalogued under their own names unless they are better known by the pseudonym, as for example, George Eliot, George Sand, Voltaire and others.

which may be translated, (reading from left to right,) as follows: Number in printed catalogue, 850; subject, philosophy; author, W:[illiam] Windelband, W:, according to the American Library Association rules, being the abbreviated form of William; title, History of Philosophy; translated by J. H. Tufts and revised for the second time; published in New York by the Macmillan Company in 1901, in octavo, bound in cloth. The book is in disreputable condition as noted, was bought for?, publisher's price $3.50, and because out of print, and not likely soon to be reprinted, is offered at $2. The shelf number is 1820 and the source of purchase Libbie's auction room.

Other memoranda for the bookseller's own information such as whether duplicates of any book catalogued may be obtained from the publisher, or from another dealer, at a reduced price, with quotations for single copies and quantities, etc., may be entered upon the title card at the bookseller's discretion, thus giving a complete account of the book since it came into his possession. Of course, many of these details will be dropped in preparing the titles for the printed catalogue. Even in cataloguing the stock for the bookseller's own use some of the details will be found superfluous or impracticable as in the case of minor books, pamphlets, periodicals and newspapers which are bought in bulk and often sold in the same manner. And there will be some who will scoff at the suggestion of keeping a stock-list of any kind, preferring to grope by the hour through their accumulation of junk in the vain hope of finding what they think they once might have had, until the impatient customer, tired of waiting, turns away in disgust. Others claim to depend upon their phenomenal and inflexible memories in lieu of a stock-list; but a man who can as instantly and unfailingly locate a book in a stock of ten thousand volumes or upwards as another less gifted person can refer to it in an orderly and well-kept stock-list, does himself an injustice by remaining hidden away in a bookshop. He is a prodigy whom Fortune, if she but knew of him, would surely entice to invade broader and more profitable fields than the second-hand book business can ever afford him.

THE TRUTH ABOUT "BEN-HUR."

How "Ben-Hur" came to be written and published has been told many times, but, unfortunately, few of the prevalent tales concerning this remarkable work are in accordance with the facts. Recently it has been stated in a popular magazine that "Ben-Hur" belonged to the long list of manuscripts which met with repeated rejection. This is not the fact. The story was first submitted to Harper & Brothers for publication and promptly accepted. The book, moreover, was a reasonable though not a remarkable success in its first year. The fact which surprised the publishers was that its sales were doubled in the year following. It advanced, from year to year, by geometrical progression until it became one of the most widely selling books in American literature. Many interesting facts concerning the inspiration and growth of "Ben-Hur" are set down by General Wallace in his autobiography, which will be one of the important books on the fall list of Harper & Brothers.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE ALDEN "WAY OUT."

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: There appeared in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of August 18 nearly 600 lines of advertising under the heading of Books Wanted; during the busy season I should place the number at 1000 lines. In the entire list there appears the name of but one department store for a single book. If the exclusive agency plan is to be carried out many of the agencies would undoubtedly fall to the department stores; who then is to take care of the buying public who are constantly demanding out-of-print books? This class of custom must be taken care of.

I quote from the New York Times of April 22, 1905, in review of "A Publisher's Confession." . . . "With all the display of activity on the part of the trade and despite the account of 'big sellers' scattered over the land by the hundreds of thousands, our publisher is convinced that a very small proportion of possible readers is reached at all. And this he attributes to the very imperfect development of the means of distribution, the lack of the retail dealers in books in other than the larger towns."

Can anything be more convincing and conclusive than the above in which all publishers agree? Now, according to Mr. Alden's reasoning, the publishers are to be asked to put in operation a plan which would greatly decrease the number of distributing agencies, thus cutting down the total output of their publications. The retailers on their part are asked to combine to coerce the publishers to inaugurate a system that practically will force eighty per cent. of them (the retailers) out of business. I may be dull of discernment, but I fail to see any harmony or equity in this.

Mr. Alden's experiment of twenty-five years ago had to do, as I understand it, with non-copyright publications, titles of which could be purchased of other publishers in different editions, consequently the dealer was enabled to always have a sufficient supply, even although he was not the agent; but we are dealing now with copyright books, of which there is one edition made by one publisher, and any restriction placed upon them which in any way would decrease the number of outlets would seriously affect the general sale.

In entering these discussions one of my desires was to bring out expressions from other dealers, although up to the present time nothing has appeared in print, but I have not given up hope. "Come in, the water's warm." As far as I am personally concerned, these letters are written in a friendly spirit, with the object of bettering trade conditions if possible, and it is not my desire to exhibit any animus, but I must deny emphatically the gentleman's charge of subornation. Honi soit qui mal y pense. Found, hidden away in the files of twenty-five years ago in a certain jobbing house in this city was a circular over Mr. Alden's name offering special inducements to jobbers to buy Mr. Alden's publications, the reasons alleged therefor being overproduction and stagnation of business during the summer months; yet Mr. Alden at that time did not sell to jobbers but to "exclusive agents."

Would any member of the A. P. A. refuse to sell me a hundred copies of a book merely because they had sold two hundred copies to my local competitor? Certainly not, provided my credit was good and I agreed to maintain the schedule retail price fixed by him. On the other hand, had I gone to Mr. Lovell for a hundred copies of his publication, could I have gotten them after showing a willingness to make any and all concessions?

In the gentleman's last paragraph he leads us to infer that kodaks and sewing machines can be purchased in the city at one agency only. The fact of the matter is they can be purchased on nearly every block, the selling price being the same in all stores.

The day the exclusive agency method is put in operation by the A. P. A. I sell a business which nets me fifteen thousand a year.

Yours sincerely,

R. E. SHERWOOD.

NEW YORK CITY, August 22, 1906.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE August issue of The Burlington Magazine, published in this country by Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., contains the fifth part of Sir Richard R. Holmes's interesting account of "The English Miniature Painters," treating of the work of Edward Cooper, illustrated with a number of specimens of his best-known work; the seventh instalment of Lawrence Weaver's papers on "Some Architectural Lead Work," treating of Scottish lead spires, with illustrations; the third of the articles on "The Development of Rembrandt as an Etcher," by C. J. Holmes, with three plates, and several other articles of general interest to collectors and art students. In the department of Art Books of the Month are criticisms of a number of recent books on Rembrandt, etc. Art in America is reviewed by F. J. Mather, Jr., and Roger E. Fry, and Art in Germany by Professor Dr. Hans W. Singer.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

L. C. PAGE & Co. publish this week a holiday book made up of little masterpieces of Hawthorne, entitled "In Colonial Days;" and "The Giant Scissors," the third story of Mrs. Johnston's that has been put in a special holiday edition, completing the trio of Little Colonial Stories, which were originally published in the Cosy Corner Series.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just ready a volume of recollections by Bishop Tuttle, of Missouri, Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, entitled "Reminiscences of a Missionary Bishop." The record of the past four decades in Church and State, particularly in the West, is touched upon in this book by an eye witness whose vantage ground was particularly favorable for observation. The book affords an opportunity to study at first hand the marvellous rapidity with which modern civilization has developed within that period.

Laird & Lee will publish in October two handy books for automobilists, namely, "Krausz's A B C of Motoring" and "Krausz's Complete Automobile Record." The "A B C of Motoring" contains practical every-day information for owners of automobiles, with a dictionary of terms, description of the mechanisms of different types of cars, troubles of the roads, speed laws of each State, etc., accompanied with tables and illustrations and prefaced with an introduction by John Farson, president of the Automobile Association. The "Complete Automobile Record" will be found useful in keeping a record of expenses, starting and objective points, miles run, cost of repairs, etc., arranged in daily and weekly columns for fifty-two weeks.

Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co. will publish on Saturday, September 1, George Cary Eggleston's latest novel, "Blind Alleys: a Novel of Nowadays," in which he leaves his distinctive Southern field and gives instead a strong story on love and mystery, with its scene laid in New York; also "Hearts and the Cross," by Harold Morton Kramer. Mr. Kramer, an editor of the Morning Times, of Frankfort, Ind., is new to the ranks of novelists, but from the excellence of his work is destined soon to be widely known. This house will also publish at once eighteen cloth bound, illustrated juveniles by such authors as Margaret Sidney, Edward Stratemeyer, E. T. Tomlinson, A. T. Dudley, Amanda Douglas, Nina Rhoades, Amy Brooks and other favorites, forming the largest line of this description issued by any American publishing house.

Brimley Johnson & Ince, Ltd., have issued under the title of "The Two Arcadias" the plays and poems of Rosalind Travers, for which the introduction was written by the late Richard Garnett, who said some very appreciative words of the young and thus far unrevealed writer who showed "a truly poetical fancy, united with a practical concern for contemporary interests and [was] competent to exalt them to the sphere of poetry by investing them with the glamour of imagination. Miss Travers's little volume may be regarded as weight seasonably cast into the scale of refinement and true civilization." The poet shows much humor and trenchant satire when rhyming on the striking features of the present age and throughout her verses, serious and in lighter vein, bear witness to ripe scholarship and cosmopolitan reading.

Reilly & Britton Co. have just ready "The Twinkle Tales," a set of six little volumes separately entitled "Mr. Woodchuck," "Bandit Jim Crow," "Prairie-dog Town," "Prince Mud-Turtle," "Sugar-Loaf Mountain" and "Twinkle's Enchantment," in all of which Twinkle, a happy little girl, is the heroine. In her many waking and sleeping dreams she becomes intimately acquainted with all the animals around her father's farm. This house also sends "Tony Tompkins: the Lion Tamer," by Harriet Scott Barber, with remarque illustrations by Clyde J. Newman, which is a very pretty specimen of book making. The story is a little sad, as it tells of a boy with a head too big for his little body who imagined lions on the wall-paper of his room and did royal battles with them, but it it is full of poetry and optimism and appeals to readers sure to prove appreciative.

Duffield & Co. will issue August 29 "The Masters of Fate," by Sophia P. Shaler, (Mrs. N. S. Shaler.) This work, which has for its sub-title "The Power of the Will," aims to show that invalids or cripples have often as good a chance to get along in this world as anybody else. "For the suggestion of the book," says Mrs. Shaler, "and for most of the scientific material contained in it, I am indebted to my husband. In his opinion, the whole field of invalidism in its relation to intellectual and moral development deserves a consideration which it has not hitherto received. His personal acquaintance with many youths who start in the race of life with a burden of grave disabilities resting upon them made it plain to him that the sense of their handicap was a load that needed to be lightened. It seemed worth while, therefore, to prepare, with special reference to this class, a brief statement of the achievements of noted persons who, under the stress of grave difficulties, have shown skill in marshalling their physical and spiritual forces to play the part of men."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Liberty, Mo.—Senter & Sharp have opened up a bookstore here. They will be pleased to receive the latest catalogues of publishers and booksellers and the lists of manufacturers of school supplies, etc.

New York City.—Baker & Taylor Co. will use their office, 43 E. 19th Street, exclusively as a sample room, and all orders should be referred to the manufacturing and shipping department, 203 Fulton Street, Brooklyn. A full line of publications will also be found at 33-37 E. 17th Street, New York City, where list orders can be immediately supplied.

New York City.—F. M. Crosset Company, 156 Fifth Avenue, has been incorporated and will succeed to all the business of Crosset & Bates, dissolved after the retirement of Hayden J. Bates. The new corporation publishes the oldest maritime trade journal The Nautical Gazette, a weekly, established in 1871, and Pediatrics, a standard medical journal devoted to the diseases of children. Through the corporation's offices issue the Seventh Regiment Gazette, New York Athletic Club Journal and Building Trades Employers' Association Bulletin, edited by Frederick M. Crosset.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Charles F. Davenport, until recently with Gimbel & Co., of Philadelphia, has taken charge of the book and stationery department of the Joseph Horne Company here.

Scranton, Pa.—J. F. McDermott has resumed the book and stationery business at 427 Linden Street.

Scranton, Pa.—Miss A. J. Wilcox has removed her bookshop from the Commonwealth Building, where she had a room on the third floor, to a ground floor store at No. 110 Washington Avenue.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

ANNOUNCEMENT NO. 2

THE BOOK OF
Elizabethan Verse

Chosen and Edited with Notes

By WILLIAM STANLEY BRAITHWAITE

With an Introduction by THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON

16MO. MADE UNIFORM WITH "THE OXFORD BOOK OF VERSE,"

WITH AN ADDITION OF A PHOTOGRAVURE VIGNETTE OF WHITEHALL PALACE, 1590, ON THE TITLE PAGE

Bound in Cloth, Stamped in Gold, Full Gilt Edges, $2.00 net. By post, $2.10.
Bound in Full Limp Morocco, Full Gilt Edges, $3.00 net. By post, $3.12.

¶ In this Anthology of the Elizabethan age Mr. Braithwaite has done for the greatest period of English poetry that which long has been left undone, and on the model of completeness which Mr. Stedman has accomplished in his Victorian Anthology for the Age of Tennyson.

¶ THE VOLUME CONTAINS THE WORK OF OVER 117 AUTHORS' COMPRISING OVER 750 SELECTIONS.

¶ It has been the purpose of the editor to make representative, besides the more familiarly-known poets, those who are in many respects equally as great, but whose works have been limited to the few appreciative students of the period.

A partial list of the poets included as given below cannot fail to invite the enthusiasm and interest of the lovers of poetry:

W. Alexander, Earl of Stirling
Sir Robert Ayton
Barnabie Barnes
Nicholas Breton
William Browne
Thomas Campion
Thomas Carew

DOC GORDON

MARY E. WILKINS-FREEMAN'S Latest Novel

Fourth of the Famous $150,000 Series

Could David Harum be brought back to life he would find himself cast into outer darkness in the matter of horse trading. For years he was the synonym for all that is cleverest, sharpest and most amusing in the devious art of swapping horses. But now a rival not only challenges, but eclipses his honors.

This rival is "Doc Gordon," of Alton, N. J.; a man of mystery even to the villagers and farmers among whom he passes his days. The story of his latest horse trade is on all lips and is the talk of Southern New Jersey. It is the most amusing and unusual anecdote of the year. Strangely enough it has had a thrilling, well nigh tragic sequel, which adds new and strange interest to the tale.

A graphic and wholly delightful account of this famous horse trade and its consequences is given in "Doc Gordon," Mary E. Wilkins's newest and greatest novel. This novel is a complete and utter departure from everything else Miss Wilkins has written. In fact it is not the sort of a book that a woman usually writes, for it has a strength and intensity of humor that are thoroughly masculine.

It is the famous author's first story of the sort, and is full of mystery, stirring adventure, and dainty, natural love interest. "Doc Gordon," the hero, is a man that will live in the reader's memory far more permanently and vitally than David Harum. Whether or not Southern New Jersey folk will relish the mercilessly realistic fashion in which Miss Wilkins portrays their laughable weaknesses is another matter.

New York World:
"A delightful romance—the author's latest success."

North American, Philadelphia:
"The plot baffles the reader's ingenuity and maintains his interest to the very end."

Baltimore American:
"Far and away the best work of Mary E. Wilkins Freeman."

Pittsburg Dispatch:
"This really great novel of human interest, charming love interest, extraordinary action and deepest mystery."

Richmond Times Dispatch:
"A decided departure for Mary E. Wilkins; the most startling novel of her successful list."

Louisville Courier Journal:
"Equal to anything the author has ever attempted."

Kansas City Journal:
"It has a strength and an intensity of humor that are thoroughly masculine."

Denver News:
"Nothing like it since 'David Harum' was published. A delightful romance of action and mystery."

Albany Press:
"Will live in the reader's memory far more permanently than 'David Harum.'"

Grand Rapids Herald:
"A delightful love interest is skillfully blended with surprising mystery and dramatic action."

Terre Haute Star:
"One of the author's best pieces of work."

50 CENTS INSTEAD OF $1.50

Printed from new type, on fine paper, with colored illustrations, two-color title page, fac-simile of author's manuscript and autograph; fine cloth embossed binding, 320 pages, 12mo; surpassing many $1.50 books.
